In Memoriam

REVEREND FRANCIS J. CASSIDY
1931-1967

During our college years, when many students are wrestling with their convictions, and attempting to understand their religion in a changing age, Father Cassidy had come to represent an admirable combination—a modern man living in God.

Father Frank Cassidy was unpretentious and unaffected by today's artificial society: he lived life to the fullest and loved every minute of it. He understood the present generation as few others could. He was a friend, teacher, problem-solver and confidante.

All of the eulogies delivered at Father Frank's funeral spoke of his dedication to Seton Hall, his dedication to his pupils and his dedication to God. While we were sad at his passing we were glad for having had the opportunity to know him, to learn from him, to model ourselves after him, and to respect him for the warm person and enthusiastic priest he was. Bishop Dougherty spoke for all of us when he said, "He lived life with a song in his heart; we say good-by with a song in ours."

For thirty years University College has been Seton Hall in downtown Newark; this year, with the transfer of the programs, faculty, students and staff of Seton Hall Newark to South Orange, University College can now share the multiple courses, libraries, labs, and activities that are the heart of the University.

The college experience should not be just classroom learning, but the human experience of living and working with others. For the 850 resident students the newly expanded dormitory facilities have provided a further means for self development while at Seton Hall.

For the first hundred and eleven years Seton Hall's undergraduates on the South Orange campus were almost exclusively men. With the new term, this past February, the first girls arrived from the Newark Schools of Nursing and Elementary Education. Beginning in September, all the schools of the University will become co-educational. Many things are different now.

The FRESHMAN . . . uncertain, immature, impressionable . . .

The SOPHOMORE . . . cocky, enthusiastic, inquisitive . . .

The JUNIOR . . . cool, impatient, idealistic . . .

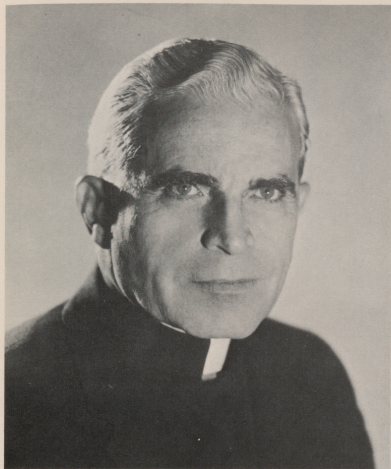

The SENIOR . . . learned, sophisticated, confident.

ADMINIS- TRATION

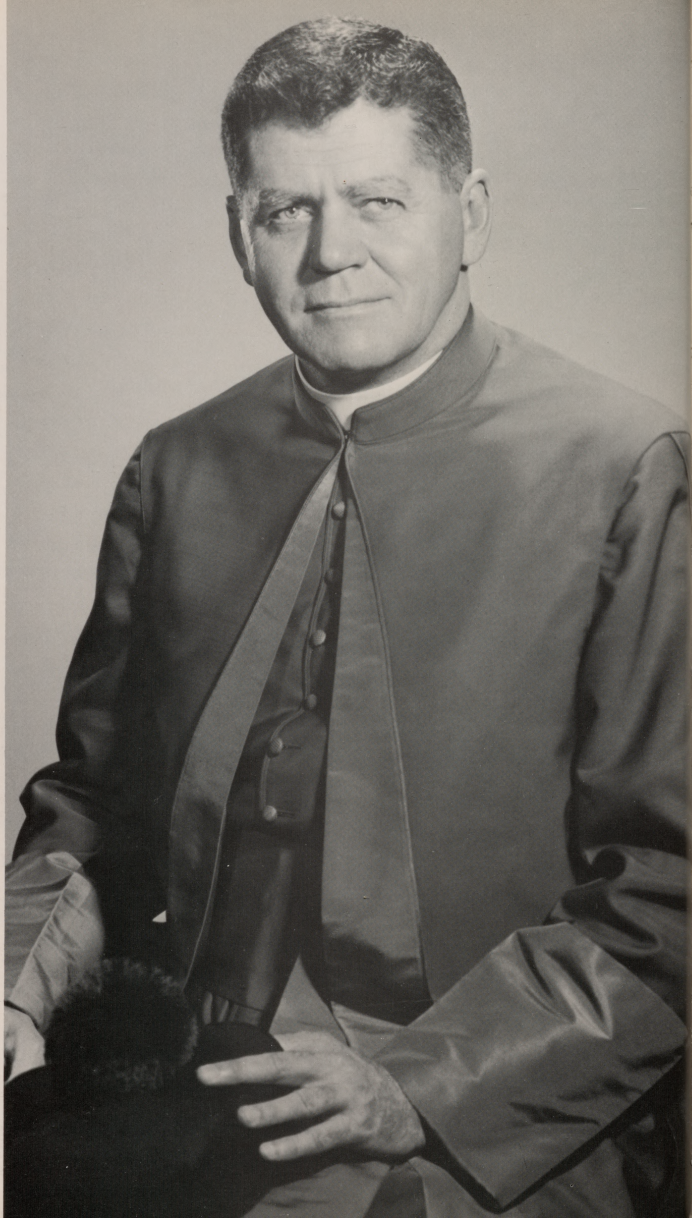

MOST REV. JOHN J. DOUGHERTY

President of the University

In a day of befuddled thinking and minced speaking Bishop Dougherty has repeatedly challenged us all to a vigorous and conscientious response to our moral and social responsibilities. A member of the Governor's Commission on Civil Disorder and Chairman of the American Bishop's Commission on World Justice and Peace, he has made clear his personal judgments on the war in Vietnam and on the turmoil in our cities. His personal service on so many educational, civic and Church committees abundantly evidences the personal involvement in life that he has so often urged upon us; the personal involvement that our God, our Country and our University requires of each of us in these times.
